After a beautiful outdoor Wednesday Eucharist, we will try one more time to have our Sunday 8:00 Eucharist in the memorial garden. If it decides to rain, we will just be inside as normal. This Sunday, we will have Collin serve as junior lector and read the story of Moses and the burning bush out of his children's bible. I am proud of him for being willing to do this, and I pray that it inspires others to serve as lector. Reading scripture is a holy and prayerful act on its own, but when it is part of our corporate worship, it is even more powerful. There is a reason why people tend to become lectors and then remain lectors sometimes for decades. I encourage you to consider if God is calling you to do this work. I am open to having children and youth do it, and I certainly would love to have more adults do readings. For those of you who cannot become a lector for whatever reason, I encourage you to pray for others to hear the call to read during worship.

Blessings,
Marc
